OLD STORY OF WAITING UNTIL AFTER ELECTION.

New York, Oct. 15 .- There was only ominal stock market today, after the erief period of the execution of orders or foreign account, until a sudden re-Tival in the last half-hour. Whatever Impulse may account for the withdrawal from active operations of the stock financial element which has concluded the recent speculation, it was evident today that, with those operations subtracted, nothing was left of the market. The stillude of reserve on their part may be due to unwillingness to encroach further on money market supplies in the furtherance of a movement with the election still three weeks in the future; for it is generally assumed in Wall street that no service general demand for securities is generally assumed in Wall street that no active general demand for securities is to be expected until after the election. The necessity of incurring large additional obligations last week in order to absorb the flood of foreign sales undoubtedly interfered with the plans of the organized support of the present speculative position. The support at that time proved entirely successful, but involved a heavy new indebtedness to the banks. The immobility of prices caused by these conditions became very marked today and there were few, even of the most active stocks, which fluctuated over an extreme range of a point, until the an extreme range of a point, until the sudden rise at the last. Discussion of the sudden rise at the last. Discussion of the government finances came up in connection with the money market position. The continued deficit in the revenues, the reduction of the treasury's cash balance and the coming maturity of the one-year emergency notes put out at the time of the financial crisis all suggest a possible further call on the national banks for a return of government deposits.

London was a source of some strength of the local market, both at the opening London was a source of some strength of the local market, both at the opening and in the closing spurt. The political ituation seemed to cease entirely to play any part in the financial markets. Some reminiscences were indulged in with the curry upon the period of anniversaries of the exciting events attending the financial crisis last year. The coincidence of the opening of the trial of a banker conspicuous in the events of a year ago gave food to this discussion. hod to this discussion. od to this discussion.

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago, Oct. 15.—The wheat market was weak all day, with the exception of a slight raily during the first few minutes of trade, due to active support by several leading bulls. At the start prices were unchanged to 14c lower, but in the first fifteen minutes a rally to a little above the previous close occurred. Towards the end of the first hour the market turned weak and continued heavy the balance of the day, closing at the bottom. With the exception of the continued dry weather in the southwest there was little to stimulate business enthusiasm, tle to stimulate business enthusiasm, while on the contrary bearish contractwhile on the contrary bearish contract-ors were quite numerous. Chief among these latter influences was a severe slump in wheat prices at the principal European grain centers. Liverpool show-ing a decline of nearly 1d. The slump at Liverpool, it was said, was caused by the fear of a increase in the shipments of wheat from Argentina this week and to reports from that country telling of of wheat from Argentina this week and to reports from that country telling of favorable weather for the new crop. One authority estimated the week's movement from Argentina at 1.800,000 bushels, com-pared with 524,000 bushels last week. While dry weather still prevailed in the winter wheat section in this country, rain was reported quite generally west of the Rocky mountains, and the official forecast pre-dicted that the storms would spread eastward. Receipts in the northwest were much smaller, but the decreased move-ment was offset by a slackening in the demand for flour. An almost total ab-sence of export demand also tended to depress prices.

Owing to free selling of corn by small holders the market was weak all day and closed at the lowest point. Prices at the close were ½c to 1½c lower, with December closing at 63½c and May at 63c.

Oats were steady. At the sample tables prices were steady to ½c lower. The market closed steady, with prices unchanged to ¼4¼c lower. market closed steady, with prices unchanged to ½ ½ lower.

Provisions were strong early in the day, owing to buying attributed to local packers, but subsequently nearly all the gain was lost, as a result of the falling off in demand. Prices at the close were 2½c lower to 10c higher.

In the past week the produce market has been exceptionally active. The demand for all kinds of farm products has been much greater than the supply, notwithstanding the general advance in prices. Tomatoes are about out of the market. What few are left on the market are not of very choice quality and are selling at advanced prices. The crop this year is just about half what it has been in the past and the price on canned tomatoes will be several points higher than for several seasons past. Utah fruit including peaches, grapes and pears is coming in in good shape and selling at reasonable prices. California fruit is in good demand and can be had at prices approximating the cost of the Utah product. The first shipment of eastern sweet potatoes' arrived in the city during the week and are selling at 4 cents a pound.

They are from Virginia and are of fine quality. Cranberries are coming in and are in good demand. Eastern apples are arriving and can be had for $1.25 a case. Bananas are on the market in large quantities and are in better demand than for some time past. The produce market all the way through is in good condition and fruits are selling at prices within the reach of all.

The market is well supplied with products.
